Praise for Illicit Enrichment

“Dornbierer’s Illicit Enrichment provides a definitive and authoritative guide to this complex area of law and policy. The book is an invaluable one-stop shop for those carrying out or interested in the fight against corruption and dirty money.”

Jason Sharman, Sir Patrick Sheehy Professor of International Relations, University of Cambridge

“The author is to be congratulated on producing such an insightful work and on bringing much-needed clarity to a subject that is frequently misunderstood and often controversial. It is a book that is comprehensive in ambit, highly practical in approach and satisfyingly readable in style. I am sure that it will prove invaluable to criminal justice practitioners, policymakers, draftspersons and civil society representatives alike.”

Martin Polaine, Barrister & Arbitrator; Senior Lecturer, College of Law (Sydney)

“This valuable book has captured and lucidly presented an array of legal authorities in a very contentious area of law, well supported by brief but comprehensive academic analysis. Exceptional resource material for policymakers, researchers, academics, judges, prosecutors, and practitioners in general, who want to better understand the concept of illicit enrichment in the context of corruption and the proceeds of crime.”

JC Weliamuna, Former Chairman of Special Presidential Task Force on Recovery of Stolen Assets, Sri Lanka
